WOODKITH
FIELD GUIDE

Our roots . . .

WoodKith, by the very nature of its name, brings together two of the most organic and naturally found concepts in the South - wood + friendships.

The most common use of the word kith may be found with “kith and kin,” or more commonly, friends and family. We design lasting pieces that are made more beautiful by the company had and times spent around them.

We believe each piece of wood has a story to tell. Each ring, grain, crotch and fork in the piece reveals the storied history of the tree and its tale. We work hard to source and save beautiful pieces of wood that would otherwise be chopped up, hauled off or end up in a landfill. We store, cure and kiln dry the majority of our wood ourselves, a process which takes approximately 2-3 years to reach the peak moisture content levels before we even begin the design and building process.

It is our ultimate goal that each of our customers, clients, vendors & partners becomes a part of the WoodKith family. We look forward to welcoming you.

Because we source most of our wood from fallen trees that would otherwise go to waste, we always have a variety of different woods in progress. From field sourcing, curing and air drying to planing, cutting and crafting, we always have different batches in the works at various stages in the wood shop.

Here is a quick Field Guide to help you get a feel for some of the woods we can source here in the South, and some that we have in stock. Please note, images are meant to provide a glimpse into each type of wood but actual wood will vary in color, grain, texture and tone due to the nature of each piece.

WOOD PRESERVE

Our heirloom-quality pieces are made to last for generations, and so we developed our Wood Preserve to ensure you'd have all you need to care for your wooden pieces.

We hand-blend each jar of our Wood Preserve in our own shop, made from 100% natural beeswax and food-grade coconut oil. The beautiful scent of our whipped wax is equally matched by the beautiful, lasting shine you'll get each time you condition your unfinished wood piece, restoring it to its natural glory.

Wood Preserve can also be applied to condition your wooden cutting boards and serving pieces at home.

WOODEN FEAST BOARDS

1-2"

2-3"

3-4"

The pieces we craft are made to gather around, and these feast boards are no exception. These boards provide a beautiful palette for charcuterie, cheese or other platter displays, whether for holiday entertaining, wedding or a summer BBQ.

When not in use, they also make a beautiful decor item when hung in a kitchen or dining room.

Our wooden Feast Boards are currently offered in three different sizes, with or without handle slots and in a variety of wood type based on our in-stock options. Due to variations in the wood, grain, age and other factors no two boards are the same and images are meant only to show examples of some of the boards that we have made.

BREAD BOARDS

Skinny boards made from tree branches, our Bread Boards prove that no wood goes to waste.

These boards are ideal for long, fresh baguettes of bread to be served at a dinner party, or as an appetizer board for cheese, olives or a caprese display. These boards are generally approximately 5" to 8" in width with various lengths.

Each branch board is unique, let us choose your wood type.

PLANTATION BOARDS

Length: 5'-6'

The pieces we craft are made to gather around. Our exquisite Plantation Boards are no exception and are the signature of our collection. Inspired by the grand homes of the South and the nature of their hospitality, these Boards are meant to sit alongside your silver for the most memorable occasions and celebrations.

When not in use, they also make a beautiful decor item when hung in a kitchen or dining room, set on a kitchen island or dining table.
